George McBride, while motoring Monday afternoon, saw a beautiful silver gray fox at Trow's Mills. The fox was evidently being chased by a dog, although no dog was in sight. However, Raymond was driven by the fox to chase the dog off the road. The fox ran along the flat top of the stone wall, kept just ahead of the automobile for quite a distance. Suddenly the fox jumped from the wall, crossed the road in front of the automobile and back again to the stone wall. Finally the animal crosses the road in front of the machine and went at top speed into the woods. In the opinion of Mr. McBride, that the fox followed the automobile was a break in the event and that the pursuing dog would have the fox.

Police Chief Thomas R. Brown, champion fox hunter of this section remarked: "I'd give $50 to have been with you and had my gun. I'd go with you to your name is George McBride."

POETRY

SEA DISTANCES.
His native sea washed here,
Far off there were smiles
An idle more fair.

Blue as the smoke of spring
Its far hills rose,
A delicate azure ring
Crowned with white snow.

At dusk, a rose red star
Set free from wrong,
It glowed from afar
His whole life long.

Not till old age drew nigh
He voyaged there,
He saw the colors die,
As he drew near.

It towered above him, black
From peak to phantom peak
A gray mist rolled
Then, under his arched hand,
Back at his own dear land
He gazed once more.

Clothed with the tints he knew,
He saw it smile—
Oval rose and blue,
His native isle.
